Ceremony Performed Amid a Bower of Spring Flowers, With Few Attendants.

One of the loveliest of the June wedding took place today when Miss Frances Talmadge, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Philip F. Harvey, became the bride of Francis Edward Mix, of Washington, D. C.

Great branches of pink rambling roses and other pink and white spring flowers thrown into relief against a background of palms and ferns, formed the decorations, the prevailing pink and white complementing the pink and white gown in the wedding party.

The charming bride who was given away by Colonel Harvey, wore a modish gown of white faille silk and net, made with a court train. Her veil was of tulle, which reached down to her head, where it was caught with a coronet of orange blossoms to the end of her long train, which carried a quartet of colonial bouquets of orchids, sweet peas, and lilies of the valley.

Miss Helen Lipscomb, the bride's only attendant, wore a white georgette crepe and a white hat lined with the pink crepe. She carried a bouquet of pink and white sweet peas. James M. Mason was best man.

She wore a bouquet of American Beauty roses.
